

Case-study: MBT Technology LLC

Xylotek delivers fully-outsourced software and pharmaceutical process development service.

MBT Technology had built an excellent reputation for pharmaceutical IT support and wished to diversify into software product supply. Having identified a need for a unique drug discovery support system, MBT came to Xylotek as a design and implementation partner.

We spent some time understanding the MBT client's workflow and current processes before embarking on an agile development programme to iteratively deliver the new software platform. Our agile approach avoided the need for lengthy up-front specification processes and ensured continued buy-in from the client organisation with incremental improvements released early and often.

Following successful delivery of the new application, MBT won several additional contracts for process improvement and support which we continue to service using our agile methodologies.
